

Family Matters

There are many veterinary practices.

Many have modern equipment.

Many employ excellent vets and nurses.

Many genuinely care about animals.

So why does Amity exist?

Because we believe something has been quietly forgotten.

Veterinary medicine isn't just about treating pets.

It's about caring for families.

That is why our motto is so simple.

Family Matters.

Every decision we make begins with one simple understanding:

Your pet is not just another appointment. They're family.

More Than a Patient

When your dog becomes ill, it isn't just a dog that's hurting.

A family worries.

Children ask questions.

Sleep is lost.

Hearts become heavy.

We understand that because we've been there too.

When we care for your pet, we're also caring for the people who love them.

That changes everything.

We Believe Education Comes Before Treatment

Most people come to the vet looking for answers.

We believe they deserve understanding as well.

That's why our purpose is to Empower You Through Education.

Education removes fear.

Education builds confidence.

Education helps you make informed decisions rather than emotional ones.

We don't simply tell you what to do.

We explain why.

Because an educated guardian becomes their pet's greatest advocate.

The Amity Way

Everything we do is guided by five simple cultures.

We Provide Value First

Whether you become a client or not, we hope every interaction leaves you knowing something you didn't know before.

If we've improved your understanding, we've already improved your pet's life.

We Learn Constantly

Learning doesn't stop when we leave veterinary school.

Science evolves.

Medicine advances.

New treatments emerge.

That's why we continually study, question and improve, ensuring tomorrow's patients benefit from today's knowledge.

But some of our greatest teachers aren't found in textbooks.

They're sitting opposite us in the consulting room.

You know your pet better than anyone.

You know what is normal for them.

When they stopped greeting you at the door.

When they began drinking a little more water.

When something simply "wasn't right."

You spend thousands of hours with your pet every year.

We may only see them for thirty minutes.

You are the expert on your pet.

We are the experts in veterinary medicine.

Great veterinary care happens when those two forms of knowledge come together.

Every consultation is an opportunity for us to learn—from science, from experience and from the families who know their pets best.

We Focus on Results

Success isn't measured by the number of consultations we perform.

It's measured by healthier pets, empowered guardians, better decisions and lives improved.

We Seek Out Feedback

Feedback isn't criticism.

It's education.

Some of our greatest improvements have come from listening carefully to the families who trust us with their pets.

We Give Positive Energy

Kindness matters.

Hope matters.

Whether we're celebrating a new puppy or supporting a family through goodbye, we choose to bring calm, compassion and positive energy into every interaction.

A Relationship for Life

We don't believe veterinary care should be transactional.

We believe it should be relational.

We want to know your pet.

Watch them grow.

Guide you through illness.

Celebrate the victories.

Support you through the difficult days.

Because our ambition isn't simply to treat disease.

It's to create empowered guardians, healthier pets and stronger families.

Because they're not just your pet.

They're family.

Family Matters.
